NOTES FOR THE AUSTRALIAN EDITION

SPOON MEASUREMENTS

The spoon measurements used in this book are those used in America, i.e., 1 tablespoon equals 15 millilitres. The Australian tablespoon has a capacity of 20 millilitres.

PINT MEASUREMENTS

Wherever a pint of fluid is referred to in this book it should be measured as an American pint, i.e., 1 pint equals 16 fluid ounces. The Australian imperial pint equals 20 fluid ounces.

OVEN TEMPERATURE GUIDE

This is an approximate guide only. Different makes of stoves vary and even the same make of stove can give slightly different individual results at the same temperature. If in doubt with your particular stove, do refer to your own manufacturer's temperature chart. It is impossible in a general book to be exact for every stove, but the following is a good average guide in every case.

The following chart also gives approximate conversions from degrees Fahrenheit to degrees Celsius (formerly known as Centigrade). This chart can be used for conversion of recipes which give oven temperatures in metric measures.

|------------------------|--------------------|-----|---------|
|                        | Automatic°F    | Gas |         |

A black and white line drawing of a young girl with curly hair, wearing a polka-dot dress and a matching headscarf with a bow. She is sitting on a wooden chair, rolling a large, round cookie on a surface. The background is a warm, orange-toned illustration featuring a large, stylized sun or moon with radiating lines. To the right of the girl, there are several decorated cookie jars. One jar is labeled 'COOKIE JAR' and has a starburst on top. Another jar is labeled 'cookies' and is filled with various cookies. There are also several individual cookies scattered around, some with stars and other designs.

Cookies

are popular the world round. As a matter of fact, they have a very national character. We in this country have made use of many of the recipes brought to us by settlers, early and late. Our repertoire of cookies is, therefore, rich and varied. Take New England and Virginia cookies. Both areas were settled by men and women from England, and they brought with them the traditional recipes of their country. Gingerbread and ginger cookies have their origin in Germany and England. Some cookies are as personal as a signature. And wild horses couldn't make a woman part with a cherished cookie recipe that has been handed down from mother to daughter in her family.

There are drop cookies and rolled cookies, refrigerator cookies and molded cookies, bar cookies—all quite easy to make, and all keep well in a jar or a covered tin, so you can make them ahead. They keep well, it is true; but we have yet to see the household where good cookies remain in the tin more than a few days. What to do then? Simply bake another batch.

MAKING COOKIES

Bright, shiny cookie sheets insure delicately browned cookies. They should be at least an inch shorter and narrower than the oven, to allow for circulation of heat.

Tips for Holiday Baking

Mark special cookie-baking days on your calendar.

Remember that cookies made with honey or fruit, such as Lebkuchen Rounds, may be baked about a month ahead and stored in a cool, dry place (air-tight containers) to mellow.

Rolled ginger cookies and other rolled cookies may be baked about two weeks ahead.

Rich butter cookies and meringue-type cookies are best when baked several days before using.

Chop nuts, slice candied cherries, etc., when you have time, or have available an extra pair of hands in the kitchen. Store in air-tight jars, in a cool place, until needed.

Sift flour and confectioners' sugar onto a square of waxed paper; then measure.

Start a box to hold colored sugar, miniature nonpareils, unusual spices used in holiday cookies, etc., so that when you start making cookies, you'll be sure to have these in the house.

When decorating cookies, keep all your bits of candied fruit, colored sugars, nuts, etc., in individual paper cups or in muffin-pan cups.

To blanch almonds: Cover shelled nuts with cold water; bring to boil. Remove from heat; drain. Press each nut between fingers, so husk will slip off easily. Then drain dry on paper towels.

1. Our cookie recipes were tested using sifted all-purpose flour. We recommend using this type to insure success.
2. When buying baking pans, look for the manufacturer's stamp or mark on each pan, which indicates the size of the pan. Most baking pans today are standardized.
3. If you already have pans that are not marked, measure them from one top inside edge to the opposite inside edge; then mark them yourself.
4. The back of any large baking pan may be substituted for a cookie sheet. Use greased or ungreaed, as recipe directs.
5. If you are baking one sheet of cookies at a time, place oven rack in center of oven. If you are baking two sheets, place racks to divide oven into thirds. If tops of cookies do not brown properly, move to a higher rack the last few minutes of baking.
6. Always cool cookie sheet before placing unbaked cookies on it.
7. Check cookies when minimum baking time is up. To cool baked cookies, remove with a wide spatula to wire racks. Do not overlap cookies on racks.
8. Buy two cookie sheets; one sheet of cookies can be baking while the other one is filled.

Storing Cookies

1. Empty coffee or shortening cans are fine for storing cookies.
2. Line bottom of container with waxed paper; place a sheet of waxed paper between each two layers of cookies. Store crisp and soft cookies in separate containers.

Soft Cookies: Store in container with tight-fitting lid. A slice of apple or bread in the container helps to keep cookies moist. Replace fruit or bread often to prevent mold.

Crisp Cookies: Store in container with loose-fitting lid. If cookies lose their crispness, heat at 300F about 5 minutes before serving.

Bar Cookies: Store right in baking pan. Cover tightly with foil or saran.

Freezing Cookies

Cookies may be frozen either before or after baking. The raw cookie dough is easier to package and takes up less freezer space. However, baking before freezing takes less time and the cookies are ready to eat almost as soon as they come from the freezer.

Both ways are satisfactory. The method followed is entirely up to the individual. Cookies that require a great deal of preparation before baking, like rolled cookies that will be decorated, can be cut and baked ahead. The decorating can be done later, when the cookies are to be used. Meringue-type cookies and frosted cookies are not recommended for freezing.

Store cookies, baked or unbaked, about one month at 0°F or below.

For legible labeling, use a crayon, special pencil, or grease pencil. Be sure to include on the label: name of cookie, date when frozen, oven temperature, and baking time.

Empty coffee and shortening cans are ideal for packing dough or baked cookies. Seal edge with freezer tape, and label.

Freezing Cookie Dough

Drop-cookie dough: Pack dough in 1-pint freezer containers; seal; label; freeze.

To use: Remove from freezer; let stand at room temperature just until dough can be spooned and dropped onto prepared cookie sheet—30 to 40 minutes. Bake as directed in recipe.

Or drop dough as directed, 1 inch apart, on cookie sheet; freeze, remove solid cookies to freezer containers. Store between layers of waxed paper cut to fit size of container.

To use: Remove from freezer as many as needed. Bake, without thawing, as directed in recipe.

Rolled-cookie dough: Pack dough in 1-pint freezer containers; seal; label; freeze.

To use: Remove from freezer; let stand at room temperature about 10 minutes. Then roll and bake as directed in recipe.

Refrigerator-cookie dough: Form dough into roll, as directed in recipe. Wrap in foil or saran; seal; label; freeze.

To use: Remove from freezer; remove wrappings. Slice and bake as directed in recipe. Return unused dough (wrapped) to freezer. If dough is brittle, let stand about 5 minutes before slicing.

Or pack dough in empty 6-oz. juice cans, opened at both ends. Seal with foil and freezer tape; label; freeze.

To use: Remove from freezer; remove wrappings; push out dough. Slice and bake as directed in recipe.

Molded-cookie dough: Follow directions for drop-cookie dough, above.

Bar-cookie dough: Fit into 8- or 9-inch square pan a 12-inch square of foil; foil extends over corners. Spread dough in foil-lined pan; freeze, uncovered. Lift out of pan; wrap in foil or saran; seal; label; freeze.

To use: Remove from freezer; remove wrappings. Bake in pan (used in freezing), without thawing, as directed in recipe.

Freezing Baked Cookies

As soon as cookies are completely cool, pack in freezer containers; seal; label; freeze.

To use: Remove container from freezer. Take out as many cookies as needed (return remaining cookies to freezer, sealed). Let stand at room temperature about 5 minutes.

Mailing Cookies

Select only cookies that will hold up in the mail. Bar and drop cookies are particularly good for mailing.

Wrap each cookie separately in waxed paper or saran. Or put in pairs, and wrap each pair.

Line heavy-cardboard box with foil or waxed paper. Pack cookies in box. Stuff corners and any spaces with crushed waxed paper, cotton or marshmallows so cookies are secure; place crushed waxed paper on top of cookies. Cover; secure with tape. Wrap in heavy brown paper; tie securely. Clearly print address and return address. Attach "Fragile" sticker.

REFRIGERATOR COOKIES

These are also called sliced or icebox cookies. They are made from a stiff dough that must be chilled in the refrigerator until it is firm, so it can be sliced as thin and even as possible. The great advantage of refrigerator cookies is that the dough can be kept on hand and the cookies sliced and baked as you need them. They are always crisp, buttery, and flavorful—depending, of course, on the ingredients you use. Our recipes include cinnamon cookies, vanilla cookies, date cookies, and many others. One has that friendly family friend, peanut butter, as an ingredient. Another uses exotic rose water for an unusual flavor.

Shaped Refrigerator Cookies

1. Pack cookie dough in  $\frac{1}{2}$ -pint cream cartons (with ends removed).
2. Refrigerate until firm—several hours, or overnight.
3. Carefully peel carton away from each roll. With sharp knife, slice dough into  $\frac{1}{8}$ -inch slices, to make squares. Cut each square diagonally, to make triangles. Bake as directed.

COOKIES

are made from a

soft dough and dropped from the spoon directly onto the cookie sheet. Actually, "dropped" is a little misleading, as the mixture must be stiff enough to be pushed from the spoon. Drop cookies can be soft, with a cake-like texture; crisp; or even brittle. Their shape is irregular, as they spread on the cookie sheet. You can make them in a wide variety of delicious flavors. A kitchen teaspoon, not a measuring spoon, is used for dropping the correct amount of cookie dough onto the prepared cookie sheet. Place waxed paper under wire rack for cookies that are to be glazed, to catch any drippings.

ROLLED COOKIES

These are made from dough stiff enough to roll thin. Thorough chilling of the dough is one of the first principles of successful rolled cookies. If the dough is not well chilled, it will be too soft to roll without adding more flour, and that will make the cookies less tender. The dough should be handled a little at a time, leaving the rest to chill in the refrigerator.

A rolling pin covered with a stockinette, then lightly floured, helps keep the dough from sticking.

Cut cookies close together, to get more cookies from the first rolling. Rerolled cookies are not as tender.

For quick shaping: Roll the dough, and cut with long knife or pastry wheel into squares, diamonds, or rectangles.

For large cookies, like gingerbread men, use a pancake turner or wide metal spatula when placing cookies on cookie sheet.

Start a collection of fancy cookie cutters. Assorted sizes and shapes add interest and variety.

Picture books are full of designs that can be traced onto cardboard and cut out. Place pattern on dough; cut around pattern with sharp point of paring knife. This is a nice way to make cookies for special occasions, such as St. Patrick's Day (shamrock) and New Year's Eve (bell).

Commercially prepared decorating kits are available—you will find tubes and cans with colored icings on the supermarket shelf.

7. Repeat with another third of dough, to make other arm and wing. (Refrigerate leftover dough.)

8. Combine all leftover dough with remaining third. On lightly greased cookie sheet, roll into a 14 $\frac{1}{2}$ -by-10 $\frac{1}{2}$ -inch rectangle.

9. Place pattern for body directly on dough. With sharp knife, quickly cut around pattern; remove pattern and any leftover dough.

10. Bake 10 to 12 minutes, or until firm and lightly browned. Let cool on cookie sheet; then remove to wire rack.

To decorate Angel:

1. Make Frosting: In large bowl of electric mixer, at high speed, beat egg whites with confectioners' sugar until stiff and of spreading consistency. (If necessary to make frosting stiffer, beat in a little more confectioners' sugar.) Cover with damp cloth until ready to use.

2. Decorate angel (as in color photo), leaving  $\frac{1}{4}$ -inch margin all around: With small spatula dipped in hot water, spread skirt with 2 $\frac{1}{2}$  tablespoons frosting. Spread blouse with 1 tablespoon frosting.

3. While frosting is still soft, place silver and blue dragées in rows on skirt and blouse. Also, place cinnamon candies on skirt scallops.

4. With small spatula dipped in hot water, spread each arm with 1 tablespoon frosting. While it is soft, place silver and blue dragées.

5. Using 1 teaspoon frosting, form halo above head. Place blue dragées.

6. In small bowl, mix 2 tablespoons frosting with 3 drops red food color. Use about 1 tablespoon to color face,  $\frac{1}{2}$  teaspoon to color each hand, and 1 teaspoon to color each foot. Make eye with blue dragées. Add drop of red food color to tiny bit of remaining pink frosting, to tint it deeper pink; use this for lips and cheek.

7. In small bowl, mix 1 tablespoon white frosting with 3 drops yellow food color. Use for hair; decorate with silver dragées.

8. In small bowl, mix 6 tablespoons white frosting with 12 drops blue food color. Use 3 tablespoons to color each wing; decorate with silver and blue dragées. Place gumdrops on wings, as shown in diagram 1. Wing B will be the under wing. Use green gumdrops on top wing; other gumdrops are for support and will not show.

9. Let frosting harden completely—at least 4 hours. Refrigerate unused frosting, covered with damp cloth. (If frosting becomes too stiff, beat in one more egg white.)

To assemble Angel:

1. To avoid undue handling of angel, it is best to assemble it on a serving tray or board.

2. On underside of angel's body, attach gumdrops with white frosting, as in diagram 2.

3. Spread under wing with frosting, as shown by dark patch in diagram 3. (This is where body will rest. Dark circle shows location of frosting that holds trumpet.) Carefully place body on under wing, as in diagram 3.

4. Fold gold foil in half diagonally; roll into trumpet shape. Secure with transparent cellophane tape, and trim trumpet to 4-inch length. Place trumpet against angel's mouth and hand, attaching with a little frosting (see diagram 3).

5. Put a little frosting on angel's body where top wing will rest, and on trumpet, as shown by dark patches in diagram 4. Place top wing in position, as shown in diagram 4.

6. Let frosting used in assembling angel harden completely—at least 4 hours.

Note: If angel should break at any point, "glue" together with frosting.

These have a rich, cake-like texture. Easy to make, they store and ship well. They are made in a large pan, cooled and then cut into bars or squares. Best known, and best loved, of the bar cookies are brownies; we've added some that are less known but equally good. Bar cookies, with a dish of applesauce, stewed rhubarb, or fruit compote, make an ideal dessert, especially for children.

When baking in ovenproof glass pans, reduce oven temperature by 25F.

Store bar cookies right in the baking pan, tightly covered with foil or saran.

A ruler is handy to mark off even squares or bars.

SPRINGERLE

- |                                 |                               |
|---------------------------------|-------------------------------|
| 4 cups sifted all-purpose flour | 2 cups granulated sugar       |
| 1 teaspoon baking powder        | 2 teaspoons grated lemon peel |
| ½ teaspoon salt                 | 2 tablespoons anise seed      |

1. Sift flour with baking powder and salt, twice; set aside.
2. In large bowl of electric mixer, at high speed, beat eggs until thick and lemon-colored—about 5 minutes.
3. At medium speed, gradually beat in granulated sugar, 2 tablespoons at a time, beating after each addition. Continue to beat until mixture is thick and smooth—about 10 minutes—occasionally cleaning side of bowl with rubber scraper.
4. Add flour mixture and lemon peel to egg mixture; with a wooden spoon, mix well, until it is smooth.
5. Refrigerate dough, covered, overnight. Also, refrigerate Springerle rolling pin.
6. Lightly grease 2 large cookie sheets; sprinkle each with 1 tablespoon anise seed.
7. Divide dough into 3 parts; refrigerate until ready to roll out.

9. With regular rolling pin, roll out dough, one part at a time, to a rectangle 8 inches long and 5½-inches wide.
10. Remove Springerle pin from refrigerator; coat surface lightly with confectioners' sugar. Starting from long side, slowly roll pin once, firmly and evenly, over surface of dough, to make designs. (If dough sticks to pin, peel off with spatula.)
11. With sharp, floured knife, carefully cut along lines in dough, to make individual cookies.
12. With wide spatula, transfer to prepared cookie sheets. Let stand, uncovered, at room temperature, overnight.

13. Next day, preheat oven to 325F. Bake cookies 15 minutes, or just until light-golden. Remove to wire rack; cool completely.

14. Store in tightly covered container 2 to 3 weeks before using.

MOLDED COOKIES have the somewhat symmetrical form of rolled cookies. The stiff cookie doughs are shaped, sometimes with the palms of the hands, into small balls. Some are forced through a cookie press into many and fancy shapes. Most of the doughs should be refrigerated at least an hour, so they can be handled more easily.
